

$133 million, you know roughly $50 million spending more than the Governor recommended. Now an argument can be made the crime bill is dead, whether it is or isn't I don't know, that takes 20 million off the sheet. You're at 113, still you need 25 million to go to get the overall decisions this body has made at a level where the Governor does not have to veto things out. So I don't know where you're going to...where you think you're getting the money to pay for this. I don't know what else you're going to say no to. I mean there's just very little else out there you can say no to. You can take some money out of 903, you can take some money out of homestead exemptions, which is something I think we ought to think about doing, but you got to say no to somebody or the Governor is going to...either going to have to do across-the-board cuts, or I don't know where he's going to...what he's going to say no to. You can't afford all the things you want to say yes to, it's that simple. And on this particular issue one must remember that we already are planning on spending an additional, an additional $15 million in this area next year, $15 million. With...if you adopt Senator Byars' amendment you'll double that. And somehow in the next three years you are going to spend $30 million in additional money in developmental disabilities, $30 million, when you know you have a budget gap over 100. Do you really think you can keep that promise? Do you really think you can do it? I don't think you can. I mean going from eight to four is admirable, it's the right direction, but it's not enough. We didn't do enough in 991, didn't do enough with some other things. And so I mean this amendment, instead of going from two to four, goes to one, it's that simple. If this amendment fails I will vote against the Byars amendment to try and keep it at two, and then hopefully if that would fail you would amend the A bill to two. The last thing I want to do is get up and argue against this issue, but given the decisions we have made collectively we have to say no to something or we totally, totally abdicate all of our decision-making and priority to the administration. I've said it for eight years, I'll continue to say it until next Friday, we shouldn't be doing that. We need to make some decisions there. We can look at the sheet, we need to decide how much we can afford, what we can and can't do. You cannot afford, certainly can't afford to do eight, I don't think you can afford to do four. Plug in a number, you can sustain, you can override, you know you can do it. Like I said, I add it onto the $15 million you've already added in 830, how much money do you really think you can...you will stick to on this thing. I know it's easy to say, well it's the highest priority.
